Recipe for a Typical Concert

- $\frac{3}{4}$ cup of expensive tickets
- $2\frac{1}{4}$ cup of a line for the merch table
- 1 tablespoon of finding your seat (This is optional if you have the floor)
- 2 teaspoons of that one guy with a laser pointer (Optional)
- 1 cup of someone on their phone the whole time
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup of pyro (Stage effect fire)
- 1 cup of intoxicated people
- Preferred amount of crowd surfers
- 2 cups of crowd participation
- 1 expensive shirt

Directions

First, take your $\frac{3}{4}$ cup of tickets that are so expensive that you might have to sell a kidney, and add that to a bowl. Once that is added and you are at your concert, add the $2\frac{1}{4}$ cups of the lineup for the merch table that wraps around the stadium. Once you've finished adding that, you will want to add 1 shirt that costs almost as much as the tickets. Next you will add 1 tablespoon of finding your seat. You can skip this if you are standing on the floor for the show. Once you have found your seat, you will add 1 cup of someone who is on their phone the entire concert. After that, you will add 1 cup of intoxicated people. If you want to spice things up, you can add 2 teaspoons of some guy with a laser pointer trying to distract the

Letter of Complaint

Dear concert attenders,

Most concerts I go to, there is always at least one of you who ends up causing trouble. Sometimes it may be entertaining, but most of the time it is just annoying. From getting up to go to the bathroom every three minutes, to spilling drinks everywhere, you sure cause a lot of inconveniences. You also don't need to spend the entire concert talking to your friend very loudly about unrelated topics or sitting on Facebook the entire time. Stop taking selfies, get off your phone, and enjoy the show. There are things you can do to enjoy the concert than start fistfights or spend $100 on drinks.

Staying off your phone does not mean you can't record bits of the concert. It just means that you should not sit on your phone with your brightness up all the way, livestreaming the entire concert, or sitting on Facebook for one or two hours. You also don't need to encourage fights or wave laser pointers around to have fun. Just enjoy the concert while letting others enjoy it as well.

It should not be hard to let others enjoy the concert while still enjoying it yourself. I am not paying around $100 to hear you talk about your annoying neighbors, have you walk past me 40 times so you can get more drinks, or to see what your grandma's up to on Facebook. Keep your ill intentions to yourself

Sincerely,

Shaelyn Thiessen

Demonstration Steps: Learning a Song on Bass

1. Pick a bass to use
2. Look for tabs that don't seem like they were made by a 6-year-old
3. Attempt to play
4. Get distracted
5. Try again
6. Make some progress
7. Watch someone better play it
8. Get distracted Pt.2
9. Think of quitting all together
10. Attempt #3
11. Mess up again
12. Finally get the hang of the song

Stuck in My Mind

This song is stuck in my mind
Music really is one of a kind
My fingers snapping
My feet tapping
The drums pounding in my heart
Music truly is an art
The guitars squealing
They are playing with feeling
Man, I can't figure out this song
Music could never do me any wrong
Can't stop humming
Can't stop strumming
I only hear it in my head
Even when I'm lying in bed
But the worst thing of all
I can't even remember what it's called
It's stuck in my mind like it's some sort of game
The least it could do is give me its name
While this song may be stuck in my mind
Music truly is one of a kind
